ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION of
The IT University of Copenhagen (ITU)
(a translation of the Danish version)

I. Name and location

Section 1

The name of the university is IT-Universitetet i København (ITU), in English the IT University of Copenhagen. The IT University is a government-financed, self-governing institution whose registered office and venue is in the Municipality of Copenhagen. The IT University is covered by the Minister for Higher Education and Science’s supervisory authority.

II. Purpose

Section 2

The purpose of the IT University is to conduct research and provide research-based teaching in Information Technology up to the highest international levels. The IT University shall strive to generate a public/private sector partnership in both its educational offering and its research to promote IT value creation in Denmark. Based on its research, the IT University is able to carry out projects for a minister as agreed with that Minister. The IT University’s remit is to develop and implement educational programmes which are attractive to a large number of people and which are suitable for providing them with IT skills and proficiencies relevant to current demand. The IT University shall further through its research contribute to scientific education and innovation.

III. Financial basis

Section 3

The IT University is financed primarily by way of the Minister for Higher Education and Science’s grant for educational, research and communication activities and other activities undertaken by the IT University, including Danish taximeter-model grants, private research funding, research funding from national and EU research programmes and financing activities.

IV. Organisation

Section 4

The IT University is managed by a Board of Directors and the Executive Management. The Executive Management shall comprise at least the Vice Chancellor and a pro-rector or University Director. The IT University consists of a number of scientific and administrative departments. The number and life of the scientific and administrative departments and to whom the Heads of Department report shall be determined by the Board of Directors on the basis of the Vice Chancellor’s recommendations. The applicable organisation of the IT University is described in the Organisational Chart, which constitutes a separate document. Each scientific department shall have a Head of Department and each section shall have a Head of Section who manages the staff of the section. The Heads of the Department and the Heads of the Section shall report to a member of the Executive Management unless otherwise indicated in the Organisational Chart.

Sub-section 2 The applicable Organisational Chart for the IT University shall be published on the IT University’s website.
Participation and involvement of staff and students shall be ensured through the IT University’s collegiate bodies, groups and committees. The existing collegiate bodies, groups and committees and their composition are described in the IT University’s Organisational Chart and on its intranet.
